Door Plate Decor Competition

It is said that “Nobody on Earth can love us more than our parents”

On occasion of Parents Day, Isaac Newton Global School conducted a door plate decor competition. The name plate decor competition was conducted so that participants display their creativity and design skills by creating unique and aesthetically pleasing name plates. These name plates were made to gift parents by showcasing their names which could be displayed at the entrance of homes, offices, or other designated spaces.

Participants used various materials such as wood, metal, cardboard, canvas, or even found objects available at home to create their name plates. They used different techniques like painting, clay modelling, and other required skills and techniques. The purpose of this competition was to encourage participants to come up with innovative and visually appealing designs that reflect their individual style.

Judges in the competition examined the name plates based on criteria such as creativity, artistic skill and technique, use of colours, clarity and reliability of the name and overall presentation.

A name plate decor competition not only provided an opportunity for participants to showcase their skills but also inspires others to explore their creativity and decorate their spaces with unique and personalized items.
